Innovative Web-Filtering Product Earns Second Win in Major Consumer Safety Awards

iBoss Home Parental Control Named Outstanding Safety Product for 2009 by iParenting Media

SAN DIEGO—For the second straight year, an iBoss Home Parental Control Web-filtering device has been honored in iParenting Media’s Outstanding Products Call in the category of Safety. Confirming that the 2008 award was no fluke, the award for 2009 follows the iBoss Home Parental Control’s recognition as a Top 10 Hi-Tech Gadget for 2009 by Family.com, which picks its winners from iParenting’s selections.

A Disney Internet Group media property, iParenting.com is trusted by millions of parents for its reliable and timely information on a variety of topics affecting the health, security, and well-being of families. Its annual Media Awards is a premier product evaluation and testing service that gives parents credible and objective testimonials from other parents, childcare professionals, and product-testing experts who determine the best products in the marketplace — in this case, for home safety.

Each year thousands of product entries undergo iParenting Media’s internationally certified (ISO 9001: 2000) evaluation system, the only one of its kind in the parenting awards industry, which is audited by Underwriters Laboratories Inc., an objective third party, to ensure the highest standards of quality. The winners are then honored with the most prestigious consumer award.

“The iBoss Home N Internet Parental Control was very easy to install. I was able to block certain web sites from each of my children. Tech support was very easy to get a hold of when needed, they walked me thru the setup,” reported one iParenting Media Awards’ Reviewer.

“It’s an effective web filter that allows a child to safely use the internet, without accidentally accessing inappropriate sites. This helps to boost confidence levels and gives children a feeling of independence. It’s also great that it is wireless, so it can go anywhere, with a laptop or a desktop,” commented another iParenting Media Awards’ Reviewer.
